

1 offense fines. The trustee objected to debtor's plan on the basis its treatment of these separately
2 classified criminal traffic fines were inconsistent with the applicable case law in the district. At a 3 contested confirmation hearing, trustee's objection was sustained and the debtor given two weeks
4 to file a plan consistent with the case law. The debtor's modified plan increased the plan term to 5 sixty months and the base to $5,304.00. The debtor's counsel objected to the claims of two creditors
6 and separately classified the criminal traffic fines. The debtor's amended funding analysis reflected 7 payments to the separately classified claims of $3,965.00 and $358.60 to unsecured claims. This 8 modified plan was confirmed.

9 Mr. McGlothlen filed an application for attorney fees in this case for $1,479.60 of which 10 $550.00 had been paid at the time of the application. The trustee objected to allowance of the 11 amount requested.

12 Between the initial interview with the clients and the first meeting of creditors, Mr.
13 McGlothlen spent 4.07 hours and seeks $488.40 in fees. These fees are reasonable and are allowed.

14 In the period between the first meeting and plan confirmation, Mr. McGlothlen seeks an 15 additional $867.60 for 7.23 hours of work.

16 In this time period the trustee objects to two charges. The first relates to the January 14,
17 1999 entry of .68 hours in the amount of $81.60. The trustee bases his objection that it relates to a 18 discussion of general procedures and this should be a part of overhead as general education and this 19 should not be charged to this case. The court sustains this objection.

20 The trustee also objects to the second time entry for April 28, 1998 for 2.18 hours in the 21 amount of $261.60. It appears that a portion of this time was spent discussing the court's legal 22 rulings as to the appropriate way to deal with separate classification of traffic fines. In re Ponce, 218
23 B.R. 571 (Bkrcy E.D. Wash. 1998) and In re Games, 213 B.R. 773 (Bkrcy E.D. Wash. 1997). This 24 appears to be case specific education for debtor's attorney as to the case law and would generally be 25 allowable.

26 This time entry also includes "review of plan funding re 36/60 months and Culpepper/Colvin

1 confirmed plan filings. . .". Evidently Mr. McGlothlen traveled to the Clerk's office and reviewed 2 confirmed Chapter 13 cases handled by other attorneys to determine how they handled these matters.
3 This seems to fall in the nature of more general education and generally attributable to overhead and 4 not allowable.

5 Also included in this time entry is time for modification of the plan, time clearly compensable.

6 All of these different tasks are lumped together in one time entry. It is impossible for the 7 court to reconstruct this time after the fact without simply guessing. As this court has previously 8 ruled in In re Smiscon, this practice of time lumping is unacceptable to this court.

9 In light of the lumping of time in the entry of April 28, 1999, the court will disallow this entry
10 in its entirety. The lumping of time was called to Mr. McGlothlen's attention by the trustee's 11 objection. Mr. McGlothlen had an opportunity to attempt to remedy that complaint prior to the 12 hearing but did not do so. The court will henceforth not speculate on what time was spent on what 13 task in lumped time entries.

14 As a result of this analysis, the court sustains the trustee's objections to Mr. McGlothlen's 15 fees and accordingly $81.60 and $261.60 for a total $343.20 of the time requested is disallowed on 16 the trustee's objection. This amount reduces the fees to $1,136.40.

17 Also included in Mr. McGlothlen's fee request is 1.22 hours for $146.40 attorney fee for the 18 fee application. This is a reasonable sum for fee application preparation and usually would be 19 approved. Here, however, Mr. McGlothlen has not prevailed in this fee contest. He should not be 20 compensated for making this fee request because the only charge which makes the preparation of the 21 request necessary is the amount of the fee request itself. Without the fee request time, Mr.
22 McGlothlen's allowed time would total $990.00. There was no need under our rules to file an 23 itemized fee request in a Chapter 13 case if compensation sought is less than $1,000.00. Therefore, 24 the time requested for allowance of the fee application is disallowed.

25 The court allows as a reasonable fee in this matter $990.00.
