

BIOGRAPHY OF JOSEPH R. JACKSON

Three years after enrolling in Washington State University, Joseph R. Jackson had accumulated enough credits to graduate. However, by working hard enough to accumulate enough credits to graduate, Joseph R. Jackson was throughly sick and tired of school so he quit with his degree to pursue a career in computer science. After two years of the mind numbing work associated with high level computer programming at the Hanford Reservation, Joseph R. Jackson quit to attend Willamette University Law School, graduating in 1982. Mr. Jackson spent five years as an associate with the Kennewick Law Firm of Westland, Lieblor and Ivey. In 1987 he relocated to Wenatchee and worked with the firm of Jardine, Foreman for two years and with Jardine Law Offices until Mr. Jardine's death in December, 1995. Since January, 1996 Mr. Jackson has been a sole practitioner in East Wenatchee, Washington. Mr. Jackson is currently filing an average of eighteen bankruptcies a month. He has one wife and one daughter and has a successful and abundant home life.
